

THE TERRAPIN PROFILES

Four years ago, head coach Brenda Frese shared her dream of winning a national championship at the University of Maryland with Shay Doron. Frese's first recruit at Maryland, Doron took the leap of faith. Her belief in the staff and the school springboarded the Terrapins to achieve great things. An Israeli native and a superstar in her home country, Doron has carried her team along the way since arriving on campus — whether it was leading the team in scoring or leading by example — the determination to claim the NCAA title was unwavering.

The Terrapins played in her home country in early June 2007 and against Noirez's old team, Insep. Standing in her old gym, her old coach and team honored the national champion, presenting her with flowers and a big round of applause and Noirez could not help but become emotional. And in the stands was her biggest cheering section, her parents, family members and friends.

On Dec. 26, 2004, Laura Harper lined up on the baseline for a routine full-court sprint. A few steps later, she was down on the court writhing in pain. That was the day Harper tore her Achilles' tendon having played just nine games of her freshman campaign. After the injury, she underwent surgery and endured eight months of rehabilitation. Watching the rest of the season from the sidelines, Harper gained a deeper appreciation for the sport she loves, evident in the way she plays. Sixteen months later, Harper stood atop the podium, holding the national championship trophy above her head as the Final Four's Most Outstanding Player.

On her way to matching a career-high 34 points in the Sweet Sixteen against Baylor, Crystal Langhorne entered the locker room at halftime after hitting one of the biggest shots of the game, turned to her teammates and said, "thanks for passing me the ball guys." When asked to explain what makes her so good, Langhorne has a hard time finding the words. When asked about her teammates' talents, the words flow with ease. The program's first All-American in 17 years, Langhorne has earned numerous honors in her first two years at Maryland, but takes more pride in the championship she won with her teammates than any individual honor she has received.
